Dear Mr. Reid,

Your firm has been engaged in a renovation project for the relocation of the Administrative Offices of the Archdiocese of Atlanta to our new Smyrna headquarters. Mr. David Salzman has been your firm's project manager. I write to thank you and to commend Mr. Salzman and indeed all of his coworkers for their service and collaboration.

Since this project involved major changes in the existing building, we had to coordinate the move so that our staff could relocate and your firm's construction work could proceed with minimal conflicts. I am grateful that our collaboration achieved this balance allowing the work of the Archdiocese to continue and your firm could achieve the completion of the renovation design. I believe as we near the completion of this project, both objectives were admirably accomplished.

Mr. Salzman and his staff worked very well with Mr. George Barrie and Mr. Carl Trevathan of Catholic Construction Services of the Archdiocese with minimal complications. This is a tribute both to your firm and to Catholic Construction Services. I deeply appreciate our collaboration and hope that any remaining final steps will proceed with the same level of success as those that have marked this entire project.

With cordial best wishes, Mr. Reid, may I remain,

Yours sincerely,

✠ Wilton D. Gregory,
Archbishop of Atlanta
